Course Description

Methods, mechanics and best practices of planning, performing, documenting and disseminating independent engineering research

Course Pre-Requisites / Co-Requisites

Course is open to first-year doctoral students in chemical engineering. Research-oriented master's students or undergraduates may enroll with permission of research advisor.

Course Objectives

Many first-year graduate students struggle to acclimate to the rigor, independence, and uncertainty of performing chemical engineering research. The aim of this course is to help new graduate students adjust to the methods, mechanics and best practices of the tasks associated with research, including finding and reading literature, designing experiments, and organizing and disseminating the results in a variety of contexts. Students will learn through guided modules and open discussion with accomplished researchers.

Course Schedule

Week 1:	(Re-) Introduction to research, the scientific method, and the Ph.D.
Week 2:	Responsible conduct of research
Week 3:	University resources, shared facilities, seminars and colloquia
Week 4:	Finding, organizing, reading, and critiquing literature
Week 5:	Journal club (student presentations)
Week 6:	Developing a research plan
Week 7:	Record-keeping
Week 8:	Data processing and visualization
Week 9:	Developing style in scientific writing
Week 10:	Performing research in anticipation of a publication
Week 11:	The thesis proposal
Week 12:	Effective verbal communication and networking
Week 13:	Designing posters and oral presentations
Week 14:	Class presentations (theory, justification and plan for first set of experiments)

Attendance Policy, Class Expectations, and Make-Up Policy

Attendance and participation each week is required. Each unexcused absence beyond the first will result in a reduction of a letter grade. Excused absences must be consistent with university policies in the Graduate Catalog (<http://gradcatalog.ufl.edu/content.php?catoid=10&navoid=2020#attendance>) and require appropriate documentation. Reading assignments may be given throughout the semester in preparation for a lecture. Any student that has clearly not read the assigned work for a lecture may be considered as an unexcused absence for that lecture.

Students Requiring Accommodations

Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should first register with the Disability Resource Center (352-392-8565, <https://www.dso.ufl.edu/drc>) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, students will receive an accommodation letter which must be presented to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.

Course Evaluation

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing online evaluations at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu/evals>. Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester, but students will be given specific times when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu/results/>.

University Honesty Policy

UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge which states, "We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code. On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: "On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment." The Honor Code (<https://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/process/student-conduct-honor-code/>) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Furthermore, you are obligated to report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel. If you have any questions or concerns, please consult with the instructor or TAs in this class.
